

Aidan Sutcliffe has joined Compass' Leeds office as an Associate Director to strengthen the firms offering and fulfill client demand.

Daniel Leaf, Compass Director, commented;

"The success of Leeds as a city has resulted in an ever - increasing demand for building surveying and project management services. Aidan brings great commercial experience, commitment to client service and an exceptional skillset to the team. His appointment also enables us to increase our specialist areas and widen our client base, setting the foundations for further expansion."

Aidan Sutcliffe added: "I am thrilled to be joining a firm which orientates its goals around technical expertise and client care. I enjoy the technical aspects of building surveying and working for clients ranging from institutional funds to private investors affords the opportunity to be involved with the diverse range of buildings the county has to offer."

Daniel Leaf added: "Our future success relies upon attracting talented people. Aidan shares the core values of the firm, which puts people and process at the forefront of the business. Being technically able is crucial, but forging working relationships with clients and delivering on commitments, will allow us to remain successful and ultimately provide our service to a greater number of clients."
